architects

Leandro, who previously worked for prominent architectural firms, officially joined the HRA team in January 2021. Prior to that, he collaborated on various projects for Sandals Resorts International and was comisioned multiple international convention's booth and visualization design.

Passion and determination have been major aspects in improving his skills as a project coordinator across multiple disciplines. He is a detail-oriented individual when it comes to construction documentation, but he also enjoys project and construction management and has excellent communication skills in both English and Spanish. Despite his extensive knowledge of architectural applications software, he believes that a true architect must be able to sketch by hand and build, hence he refers to himself as a "handyman" with some architectural talents.

He contributes significantly to the HRA team due to his extensive experience and knowledge of construction codes and technical data for residential and hospitality projects.
